Importers' Tactics

The ways of the importers are strange and incomprehensible to the man in the street.

New York papers have been speculating on the reasons that led fruit importers to ship thousands of boxes of lemons from Sicily to New York and then re-export them to Canada, Hamburg, and other foreign markets. One explanation was that this was done while the tariff fight was on in Washington, and lemons being too cheap in eastern markets to permit the importers to allege that the tariff was shoving prices up too high, they tried to create a scarcity by diverting lemons to other, and more profitable markets, and cause the price in New York to go high enough to give them an argument. They showed, incidentally, how completely they control the market and how easily they could manipulate prices if they had free entry and could thereby keep the domestic product "beyond the Mississippi" as they formerly did before the enactment of the Payne-Aldrich bill.

Don't trifle with a cold is good advice for prudent men and women. It may be vital in case of a child. There is nothing better than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs and colds in children. It is safe and sure. For sale by all Dealers.

What is Your Family Worth?

If your family is worth the best you can afford in house and food and clothes, is it not worth the best reading as well? And the best reading—best for boys and girls, best for men and women—is to be found in The Youth's Companion.

Of stories alone The Companion will print nearly 300 in 1912. With all the rest of the paper thrown in, and counting the glorious long serial stories, they cost the subscriber less than a cent apiece. Moreover, you will look long before you find stories so varied and interesting—stories of coolness in the face of peril, strange adventures with creatures of the forest and the sea, moving stories of life's obscure heroisms, quaint and curious character sketches.

Now is the time to subscribe for you will receive free from the time your $1.75 is received all the issues for the remaining weeks of 1911, containing the chapters of Ralph D. Payne's great serial story of the Boxer rebellion, "The Cross and the Dragon." And there is the gift of the Companion Calendar for 1912, "On the New England Coast," lithographed in ten colors and gold. Only $1.75 now for 52 weekly issues, but on January 1, 1912, the subscription price will be advanced to $2.00.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION,

School of Mines to Celebrate 40th Anniversary at Rolla, Mo., October 24, 1911

The School of Mines and Metallurgy at Rolla, Mo., will celebrate its 40th anniversary on Tuesday, Oct. 24, 1911, by laying the corner stone of the new $85,000 Library and Assembly Building, to be known as "Parker Hall," in honor of the late L. F. Parker, General Solicitor of the Frisco Railway System, and who not only was one of the staunchest friends of the School of Mines ever had, but also always claimed Rolla as his home.

Arch A. Johnson, Grand Master of Masons, and the Grand Lodge officers, together with many other prominent Masons of Missouri, will officiate at the ceremonies. All Masonic bodies in this section of the State have been invited to attend and participate.

In addition to the corner stone ceremonies, an elaborate program has been prepared to celebrate this epoch in the school's history.

The Board of Curators of the University will meet at Rolla on that day. Congressman Thos. L. Ruby will deliver an address on the history of the school and short addresses will be delivered by G. A. Duncan, of the class of 1874; Dean Walter Williams, on behalf of the University; Dr. J. P. Green, of William Jewell College; Hon. W. P. Evans, State Superintendent of Schools; J. L. Harrington, consulting engineer, Kansas City; Dr. E. Haworth, for State min- schools, and W. Rowland Cox, for the mining fraternity.

The Parker memorial address will be delivered by some one selected from the Parker family.

A football game will be played on Jackling field after the ceremonies, between the School of Mines and Central College, of Fayette, Mo.

The day's celebration will close with a reception and ball at Mechanical Hall in the evening to which all guests are invited.

Uncas

"My heart is not my own; it is yours. My braves are not mine, but yours. Command and I obey. I will trust the English before I will trust mine own people. The Indian that slays an Englishman shall die by my hand."

The man who made this speech of loyalty to a group of grim-visaged Puritans was Uncas, sachem and hero. Nor were his words mere idle boasting. He had already proved their truth, and was yet to prove it in a far more dramatic way.

Uncas was born about 1588. He was a sub-chief of the Pequot nation, and up to middle age had had no adventures especially worth relating. But in 1635 he headed a party of malcontents against the Pequot sachem Sassacus. In the fierce little war that followed Uncas was expelled from his "nation."

But he took with him loyal followers and formed a new tribe which he called the "Mohegans" (an ancient name of the Pequots.)

He made himself chief of the Mohegans, and conquered for them a fine stretch of land near where Lyme, Conn., now stands. Then he turned his attention to avenging himself on his old enemies the Pequots.

A DEED OF VENGEANCE

The Mohegans were not strong enough to tackle them single-handed, so he signed a peace treaty with the English settlers of New England, and in 1637 joined the colonists in their expedition against the Pequot nation. Uncas guided the soldiers to the Pequots' chief stronghold, a village fortified by high wooden palisades. So fiercely did the English and Mohegans assault this town that all but fourteen of Pequot inhabitants were slain. Then up and down through the Pequot country Uncas led the attack, until the whole "nation" that once had cast him out was subdued. In reward Uncas received a large slice of the Pequot lands. When the war was actually over he threw himself heart and soul into an effort to save the survivors of his crushed enemies from punishment at the hands of the English. So eagerly did he interfere that the English declared him a traitor and he narrowly escaped with his life. But Uncas quickly proved his fidelity to the English, and did so in such emphatic fashion that the Pequots deemed him a double traitor and plotted to murder him.

"We both have many brave men at our backs. Why should many of them die in our private quarrel? Stand forward, oh Miantonomah, and fight me, hand and hand. And let the battle's issue rest on our combat!"

Miantonomah answered: "My men have come hither to fight. And they shall fight!" Then he gave the signal for battle.

BATTLE AND VICTORY

A terrific conflict followed. By martial skill and utter reckless courage Uncas defeated the Narragansetts—double the number of his own force—and captured Miantonomah. Instead of dealing with his fallen foe in usual fashion, he carried Miantonomah before a council of Massachusetts elders, who promptly condemned the captive to die. Uncas's own brother was permitted to strike the death blow. All the local tribes now combined against the Mohegans, and but for the aid sent him by the English Uncas must have been overwhelmed. As it was he fought for years like a tiger against his allied foes, and held his own against them. Thomas Lanningwell, a settler, smuggled provision to him once, when in 1656 he was besieged by the Narragansetts. Uncas, in gratitude, gave Lanningwell the tract of land now occupied by New-Haven, Conn.

Uncas lived on until 1682, dying at the age of ninety-four. To the end he refused to embrace his white allies' religion, and was described by Massachusetts clergymen in 1674 as "an old and wicked, wilful man." Uncas had all the true Indians cunning and cruelty; but he was honest, loyal and fearless—one of the foremost savages of his century.

Averts Awful Tragedy

Timely advice given Mrs. C. Willoughby, of Marengo, Wis., (R. No. 1) prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. Doctors had said her frightful cough was a "consumption" cough and could do little to help her. After many remedies failed her aunt urged her to take Dr. King's New Discovery. "I have been using it for some time," she wrote "and the awful cough was almost gone. It also saved my little boy when taken with a severe bronchial trouble." This matchless medicine has no equal for throat and lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

WOMEN ROLL DICE FOR JOB

Pennsylvania School Candidates Let Chance
Decide Ties.

Allegheny County Commissioners had their troubles today and their office in the Courthouse presented an unusual scene owing to the interjection of women
into politics under the new school
code, which allows them to hold office as school visitors.

In more than fifty cases women are running against men for the offices. Today it was discovered that at least a score of the women had the same number of votes as their male opponents.
All of those "tied" were summoned into court.

It was explained that gambling devices would have to be resorted to in order to decide the
tie. The women, many of them
in church and social circles, strenuously objected, but when told that they would forfeit their nominations by refusing, they began to shoot craps, pull straws
and flip coins, with the result that seventeen of them won out.

Rheumatic Pains quickly relieved

Sloan's Liniment is good for pain of any sort. It penetrates, without rubbing, through the muscular tissue right to the bone—relieves the congestion and gives permanent as well as temporary relief.

Here's Proof.

A. W. LAY of Lafayette, Ala., writes:
"I had rheumatism for five years. I tried doctors and several different remedies but they did not help me. I obtained a bottle of Sloan's Liniment, which did me so much good that I would not do without it
for anything."

THOMAS L. RICE of Easton, Pa., writes: "I have used Sloan's Liniment and find it first-class for rheumatic pains."

Mr. G. G. JONES of Baldwin, L. I., writes: "I have found Sloan's Liniment per excellence. I have used it for broken sinews above the knee cap caused by a fall, and to my great satisfaction I was able to resume my duties in less than three weeks after the accident."
